

SALISBURY'S SPEECH.

The Premier Again Speaks at the Sultan's Request.

THE POWERS STAND TOGETHER.

Europe's Conscience Would Not Have Been Racked Had Rustem Pasha Remained in Charge of Affairs—Competent Men, More Than Adequate Law, Alone Will Solve the Problem The Armenian Trouble.

BRIGHTON, Nov. 20.—At the annual conference of the National Union of Conservative Associations, held here yesterday, Mr. J. Rankin, Conservative member of parliament for the Leominster division of Herefordshire, in moving a resolution to the effect that the condition of agriculture demanded the immediate attention of the government, said he did not think it possible to expect a return to protection, but the duty should be taken off tea and placed upon wheat, barley, oats and hops.

Mr. Rankin is a country gentleman, a man of science and has distinguished himself by his interest in friendly societies and old age pensions and was one of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's informal committee on the latter subject.

Lord Salisbury, the prime minister, addressing the annual conference said, among other things:

"Allow me to say a word in answer to a very distinguished, distant correspondent, if I may term him so, who requested me to make a statement in a speech to the country. This correspondent is no less a person than the Sultan of Turkey. Nothing would have induced me to read this august message here except the distinct commands of the sultan. In that speech at Guild hall, on the occasion of the lord mayor's day dinner, I expressed the opinion that I had little confidence that the reforms promised for the Turkish empire would be carried into execution. The sultan sends me a message saying that this statement has pained him very much as the carrying out of these reforms is a matter already decided upon by him, and further that he is desirous of executing them as soon as possible. He then proceeds: 'I have already told my ministers this and so the only reason why Lord Salisbury should thus throw doubts on my good intentions must be due to the intrigues of certain persons here or else false statements must have been made to cause such an opinion.'"

"The message then proceeds after some intermediary observations, 'I repeat I will execute these reforms. I will take the papers containing them and see myself that every article is put into force. This is my earnest determination, and I give you my word of honor. I wish Lord Salisbury to know this, and I beg and desire that his lordship, having confidence in these declarations, will make another speech by virtue of the friendly feeling and disposition he has for me and my country. I shall await the result of this with the greatest anxiety.'"

Lord Salisbury then continued: "These last words will acquit me of any impropriety in what I acknowledge to be a very unprecedented course—the reading of a communication of that kind at a public meeting. I could not abstain from doing what I have done without discounting to the distinguished potentate from which this message issued, but of course it would not be seemly for me to comment directly upon those words. Great Britain forms part of a concerted Europe, which has resolved, so far as it acts, to act with unanimity. Some persons seem to imagine that we, the people of Great Britain, can dispose of all the decisions of all the European powers. This is crediting us with more influence than we possess. Whatever is done must be done with unanimity, and we can only speak in behalf of one of the powers which will concur, if the powers do concur, in any action which may be taken. I will not admit that the responsibility of any of the decisions taken rests entirely or mainly on this country. The responsibility is upon us and upon all the powers in common. All those who have this responsibility must act together, so that if there are others who can not agree to act with the powers, those others can not have their own way. But I am in no wise desirous of intimating that the slightest shade of disagreement up to this moment has arisen between the powers."

Lord Salisbury then proceeded to extol Rustem Pasha, who he feared would not recover from his present illness. The prime minister spoke especially of the former administration of Rustem Pasha at Lebanon, and said that he was convinced that if men like him had been placed in charge of the districts where all these horrors have occurred the conscience of Europe would never have been racked by all these tales of suffering and terror. If there had been men round the sultan like Rustem Pasha present conditions would not exist. The present problem could not be solved by the external action of the advising powers. This, Lord Salisbury pronounced a clumsy device at best. Continuing, he said, the problem should have been solved by the natural operation of the working councillors of an enlightened monarchy, acting through efficient and competent instruments.

Lord Salisbury added: "I do not see who the men are who are to stand as representatives of the Rustem Pasha type of officials at the Sublime Porte. I exhort you to consider that this terrible Armenian problem is quite as much one of competent men as of adequate law; that the mere writing of new provisions upon fresh decrees can not supply the place of governors who know how, and what is equally important, who have the courage and integrity to do their duty. I have no doubt but the powers will do their best. But do not imagine that deep seated diseases in an empire can be cured by the wave of a magician's wand. The results of long years of error will have to be paid for, and cruel and inexorable is the law that those who pay who were not originally guilty of the offenses."

"I have taken you for the moment into the unaccustomed field of foreign policy. Nothing but the circumstances which I have explained would have persuaded me to do so, for I maintain that a foreign minister, above all others, is bound to value and cherish the virtue of silence."

Lord Salisbury then turned to domestic affairs and said that the Conservative victory was mainly due to the fact that the magnetic influence of a great statesman which had been exercised in a sinister spirit had been removed. In conclusion he dwelt upon the divisions among the Irishmen and said that if they were alone they would cut their own throats.

NEW FEUD OPENED.

Two Already Killed as a Prelude to the Drama.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 20.—As a result of a feud between the Handley, Jones and Kilgore families, Joe Kilgore and John Jones are dead and John Handley is fatally injured. Sometime ago, Jones accused Handley of stealing watermelons, which the latter denied. The story which received some circulation, caused much talk and resulted in hard feeling between the families of the men, who are all prominent young farmers and closely related.

Yesterday, Handley, accompanied by Frank Kilgore, a relative, went to Oak Run to transact some business. Both men carried their rifles. Jones and Joseph Kilgore, a cousin of Frank followed and overtook them near Marietta. Jones told Handley that if he would submit to a cowardly fight that would settle matters. Handley rejected the proposition and Jones and his friends opened fire. A pitched battle followed. Each man fired until his weapon was exhausted, fully two dozen shots being exchanged. Frank Kilgore, who was unhurt, has fled. Intense feeling is shown by the different families and it is feared that each faction will take up arms against the other.

Rustem Reported Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A report just received says that Rustem Pasha is dead. He was formerly Turkish ambassador to Great Britain.

Rustem Pasha, or Roustem Pasha, for years the representative of Turkey at the Court of St. James, whose death has just been announced in London, was the subject of a remarkable eulogy yesterday, when Lord Salisbury delivered his already famous speech before the annual conference of the National Union of Conservative associations.

Lord Salisbury referred to the successful administration of affairs which characterized Rustem Pasha's government while chief official at Lebanon, and said that if the sultan could have surrounded himself with advisers of characters like the late Turkish minister to Great Britain, that the existing state of affairs at Constantinople would not have been brought about. He announced the rapidly failing health of Rustem Pasha, a fact quite generally known throughout Europe, since his retirement on a pension on account of his ill-health was discussed as long ago as last February. But until Lord Salisbury foreshadowed his rapidly approaching end his condition was not supposed to be as bad as indicated in the prime minister's speech at Brighton.

WORK OF BAD BOYS.

Fatal Wreck on the New York Central.

ENGINEER HAGER WAS KILLED.

Two Tramps Also Dead as the Result of the Flimsy Crime—No Reason Given by the Lad Who Confesses to Being Guilty of the Devilish Work Mail Clerks Injured.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 20.—A deliberate attempt was successfully made at a point one mile west of Rome, at 4 a. m., yesterday, to wreck train No. 6 on the New York Central railroad, the engine and all of the cars on the train being derailed and completely wrecked. The engineer of the train, Nathan Hager of Albany and two tramps were killed. The fireman, Chris. Wagner of Albany, and Mail Clerks Porter and M. J. McCarthy were injured.

This is the second attempt within three weeks to wreck the same train near the same spot, which is an ideal one for the commission of such a crime. It was on a heavy down grade, and trains usually run down it at the rate of 65 miles an hour. This train, not stopping at Rome, generally goes down the grade at a greater rate of speed, and it is believed here that today it must have been running close to 75 miles an hour, in order to make up a few minutes lost time. There is not a house within half a mile of the place. The wreckers broke into the section toolhouse and stole some tools, with which they removed the fishplates, which fasten the rails to the ties and pulled out the spikes.

The train left this city at 3:30 o'clock. It consisted of four mailcars and three sleepers. There were 11 postal clerks and 14 passengers aboard, besides the members of the crew. When the crash came, the engine was thrown from the track into the ditch and completely submerged in the mire, only the driving wheels on the left side being above the earth. The forward mailcar was thrown two car lengths ahead of the engine, and rolled down the bank, and lay lengthwise toward the rails.

The second car, in which the mail clerks were working, was thrown on the tender of the engine and badly demolished. The third and fourth cars were also derailed, the ends of each being broken. The first one of the sleepers was thrown from the rails, completely rolling over, so that the trucks were a distance from the rails. The second car was simply turned on its side, while the rear sleeper did not leave the tracks at all.

Engineer Hager went down with his engine, and must have been instantly killed. The fireman, Chris. Wagner, was badly injured about the head, and it was feared that he is internally hurt. The two tramps, who were found dead, are supposed to have been stealing a ride in the forward end of the first mail car, directly in the rear of the engine.

The body of one tramp who was killed has been identified as that of Billy Bond of this city. His companion, whose left foot is cut off, was John Macey, also of Syracuse.

Boys Guilty of It.

ALBANY, Nov. 20.—John Hildreth and Frederick Bristol, two boys, have been arrested by the Central-Hudson detectives at Rome, charged with wrecking train No. 6. After the arrest young Hildreth broke down and confessed that he and Bristol, in company with two other boys named Herbert Platto and Theodore Hibbard, had broken open the toolhouse and with the aid of tools thus secured had removed the fish plates from the rails. No cause is given for the deed.

MAYOR-ELECT BIRTZ, of Newport, at the time of his election, held the office of Alderman and still holds it; and it is now claimed he is ineligible to the office of Mayor. There are lots of "snags" in the new Constitution and election law that office-seekers are running up against of late. Some of the Democrats at Lexington will probably find themselves cut out of the offices to which they were elected because they failed to comply with the law.

EVERY one who has the interest of Maysville at heart is urged to read the excellent article copied in this issue from the Manufacturers' Record. The example set by Charlotte, N. C., is worthy of imitation. There are ten or twelve men in Maysville who could make this city one of the leading manufacturing centers of the State in a short time if they would pool their interests and go to work. And it would be money in their pockets to do so. They are vitally interested in the building up of the city.

THE "new woman" is coming to the front and don't you forget it. At Lexington Tuesday, a lady who was driving in from the country was run into by a heavy transfer wagon which broke her vehicle. She became very angry at the seeming carelessness of the wagon driver and forthwith mounted his vehicle and gave him a sound thrashing with her buggy whip, much to the surprise of the driver and to the amusement of the bystanders. There was no arrest, as the lady would probably have made it also unpleasant for an officer.

Why Some Towns Grow and Others Stagnate—Good Advice, and Timely.

[Baltimore Manufacturers' Record.]

Last week the Manufacturers' Record pointed out the necessity of more hustling on the part of many Southern towns, more independence, more self-reliance, and less of the spirit of dependence and waiting on others to come in and help build up the place. It may be accepted as a rule, from which there are few exceptions, that every prosperous and progressive town in the South owes its success mainly to its own people.

They started the work of rebuilding, and their energy and enterprise became contagious. Outside business men and capitalists rarely seek a place which is not doing some lively hustling on its own account. Charlotte, N. C., is almost as good an illustration of this as Atlanta. Some years ago, when Charlotte was simply a good country town, its people took hold of manufacturing. They wanted cotton mills, but they didn't wait year after year for some one to come and build them, nor did they waste time in repining over inability to build big mills. They organized companies, raised what money they could and built the best mills they could under the circumstances. Other towns with just as many advantages as Charlotte made up their minds that they wanted a big mill or none, or they wanted outside people to come in and build the mill, hoping the town would reap all the benefits without doing anything to help itself. True, some of them having a large amount of land without much value were willing to give a few acres as a site, knowing that they would reap a hundred-fold profit by the advance in values should they fortunately catch a mill by this small bait. We have in mind one town which illustrates hundreds. This town has every possible advantage for a cotton mill. Its people seem more anxious for a mill than for anything else in the world, and yet they have frittered away six years talking about a mill without being any nearer to a realization than at the start. First they made up their mind that they would have nothing less than a great big mill by some wealthy northern concern; then they set their hearts on a $200,000 mill—it must be that or nothing—a little mill of $100,000 was beneath their dignity.

They secured subscriptions of about $100,000, about equally divided between local and New England people; but no, it must be a $200,000 mill. Every few months they take a fresh start and—do nothing. Had they taken the $50,000 of local money, or the $100,000 of local and outside money, and built a mill six years ago, they would have given the town a start, infused new life into it, and in all probability would, as a result, have several mills now in operation. They despised the day of small things, and the town is just about as dead as it was six years ago. All over the South can be found similar cases. This is but one illustration, where hundreds could be found. An illustration of the opposite side is seen in Charlotte. If it could not build a large mill, it built a small one. If it could not get outside capital, it did the best it could with local. What is the result? The Textile Excelsior, of that city, in its last issue, briefly sums up the manufacturing interests of the place, and these factories are the results of Charlotte's way of doing things.

[The list shows forty-five factories in various lines of business, the number including about twelve cotton mills.]

Hundreds of other towns might have been able to show similar progress if they had put forth the same energy and hustle. Of how many towns will it be possible during the next five years to say that they have learned a lesson and that they are vigorously imitating Charlotte? Those that intend to grow must hustle; the others will be as dead ten years hence as they are to-day.

The population of Charlotte January 1, 1888, was 8,500. On November 1, 1895, the population had increased to 20,000.

OHIO has more farms than any other State in the Union. Its territory embraces twenty-five million acres divided into two hundred and fifty thousand farms, the average size of a farm being 100 acres. Illinois is second and Missouri third in the number of farms.

THE Fleming Gazette has it on good authority that Jno. C. Wood of this district will be Chairman of the Railroad Commission, and that Capt. Jones, of Louisville, a former postoffice inspector under Harrison's administration, will be given the clerkship which pays twelve hundred a year.

A SYNDICATE headed by Judge G. W. Saulsberry has bought the Herald plant at Middlesborough, with the purpose of immediately starting a Democratic paper, of which ex-Mayor D. E. McDowell will be editor. It will be for sound money and friendly to Cleveland's administration. Bell County has never had a Democratic paper.

A. L. ROBBINS, of Winchester, Adams County, Ohio, who was found almost asphyxiated at the Galt House, at Cincinnati, Saturday morning, died since then at the City Hospital without having regained consciousness. Whether or not he blew out the gas in his room or turned it on with suicidal intent is not known. Robbins was a well-to-do tobacco grower.

WHILE opening a package of tea at the wholesale grocery house of J. C. Kerr & Co. last week thirty or forty Chinese coins were found in the tea, says the Georgetown Times. The coins were the copper cash, which have square holes in the center and are worth one-tenth of a cent in our money. The tea was bought from New York importers and shipped here in original packages from China.

THE Bourbon News says: "Late one evening last week a stranger dressed in feminine garb, and claiming to be a missionary, stopped at a country home and asked for supper and lodging. The request of the stranger, who wore a wig and sun bonnet, was granted, but she refused to remove the sun-bonnet until safely in the room where she was to spend the night, and even ate supper without taking off the bonnet. Instead of sleeping, however, the stranger spent most of the night walking the floor, and left the house early the next morning. The host grew suspicious, and a search showed that some money was missing from the house, and every drawer in the room had been ransacked. The stranger was followed and overtaken near Ansterlitz, where a search revealed the fact that the mysterious stranger was a man dressed in female apparel."

THE two most critical times in a woman's life are the times which make the girl a woman, and the woman a mother. At these times, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of incalculable value. It strengthens and invigorates the organs distinctly feminine, promotes regularity of the functions, allays irritation and inflammation, checks unnatural, exhausting drains, and puts the whole delicate organism into perfect condition. Almost all the ills of woman-kind are traceable to some form of what is known as "female complaints." There are not three cases in a hundred of woman's peculiar diseases that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will not cure.

The boy attended the Manchester fair a few weeks ago, and there got acquainted with Ben Roberts, of Cincinnati, who persuaded him to run away. Roberts, it is said, stole two good horses, one in Mason and one in Fleming County. The two started for the mountains, pretending to be hunting horse thieves. DISASTROUS FLAMES.

Lowell the Scene of an Expensive Blaze This Morning.

LOWELL, Mass., Nov. 20.—The large 5-story brick building on Middle street, known as the Parker block, was almost destroyed by fire this morning. Fire started in the liquor store of J. N. Beavy on the first floor about 1:45. It spread rapidly and was aided by repeated explosions of whisky in barrels, which blew out the windows and created havoc with the windows in adjoining buildings. At 2:15 all the engines in the city were at work and at that time it looked as if the fire was under control, but suddenly it blazed up furiously and threatened to eat its way through to C. H. Merrick street. By hard work the flames were confined to the buildings and nearby property was only slightly damaged.

The upper floors of the block were used by the Appleton Manufacturing company for the storage of cotton goods and it is estimated there were $200,000 worth there when the fire broke out. At 2:30 the fire was under control. From present estimates the loss will exceed $350,000. The building is owned by Colonel Parker. No loss of life. No damage of consequence done outside of building destroyed.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from any objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
